Messenger Drives from Christ

Express Car by Flames. for miles to the chains on the outside of an express car on a train traveling fifty miles an hour, with fire raging inside the car and no means of stopping the train or giving warning of the fire, Express Messenger Hillings, on the second section of the special Christmas mail and ex-press train between New York and Bon-ton, reached here at 4 o'clock this morn-ing and was taken from his perilous po-sition.

ing and was taken from his perious po-sition.

Inside the car was a big stock of Christ-mas express, and the body of David, Lonergan, of New York City, which was being shipped to Boston. When the fire department had extinguished the flames the box and the casket containing Loure-gan's body was found to be considerably scorched, but the body was unharmed. Many Christmas presents in the car were damaged. Billings, half frozen, was revived at the station, but was unable to proceed with the train.

"Pocketbooks Inside Out," Washington Shoppers' Order

Girl With Plenty of Money, Girl With None, Equally Eager for Bargains-Spend Time and Energy in Search of Suitable Gifts.

By C. N. McCANN.

All Washington, during ileast week, turned its pocketbook inside out and Joined the early shoppers. It seems, from the worn and weeded-out stock of the stores, that every one has done at least part of her-they do most of it—shopping.

Stores have stocked up, for the last desperate rally, with bright, assertive presents that they would not sponsor is ordinary times.

It all comes under the head of Christmas spirit. For the spirit is here. It didn't come in a barrel or a bottle, but spread itself comfort—abir through the air and hit every one. Mechanical toy wenders have popped up from nowhere. Y street is crowded every day with shoppers and volunters or impressed bundle carriers.

The approach of Christmas is evident in the chappies and matrons, and proof, if despondent fathers—and the girls, as they swirt in groups down the street, or, if alone, are swirled by the groups. There is a heatle and hurry.

While has not met with the makes were been as the same of the mighty hunger to join the crowd, there is a change this year. There have was so much shopping ten.
